MANAGER COMMENT

October saw markets trend higher after a weaker September, as a broad market rally saw most major global indices ending the month higher, including South Africa. Despite a stronger month for markets, there remain some ongoing concerns. The inflation debate remained in the spotlight, weighing on investor sentiment, especially due to concerns that inflation will not be transitory after all. The COVID-19 Delta Plus (another variant of COVID-19) encouraged fear, especially in the UK which recorded a large increase in COVID-19 cases despite a relatively high vaccination level, with the Delta Plus variant blamed for the spread. Finally, there is a concern that increased regulations by Chinese authorities will see the country's economy deteriorate and bring the global economy down with it.

Global equity markets got back to winning ways in October, as developed equity markets recorded their best month since November last year. The MSCI World Index closed 5.59% up month-on-month (m/m) in USD and 6.68% in ZAR. US stocks were supported by a strong start to the 3Q21 earnings season, with more than 80% of companies exceeding earnings expectations, driving the S&P 500 (USD) to a new peak, closing the month 7.01% up. US energy stocks were once again standout performers in October, supported by a rally in the price of Brent crude oil. European equities also closed the month on a strong note, with the Euro Stoxx 50 (€) up 5.19%.

Emerging equity markets lagged developed market peers, as the MSCI Emerging Market Index returned 0.93% m/m in USD and 1.97% in ZAR. US-listed Chinese stocks, which lost one-third of their value in the first nine months of the year, bounced back, supported by Chinese tech giants' recovery including Tencent (around 11% m/m). Unfortunately, the strong performance was offset by a poor month from Brazilian and Turkish shares.

The South African equity market followed global markets and bounced back from September losses, closing the month with strong gains. The FTSE/JSE All Share Index closed at 5.15% m/m, with mining shares the best performers for the month, particularly metal stocks.

All major sectors finished the month in positive territory for October. Resources led the pack at 8.44% m/m, on the back of stronger commodity prices driving the share price of miners. Industrials and financials closed at 6.80% and 3.49% m/m respectively. The Industrials sector was given a boost with Naspers and Prosus delivering a solid performance (around 7.5% m/m in aggregate), following Chinese tech stocks. SA listed property lost some ground in October, closing the month at -1.69%, while cash (STeFI) delivered a moderate return of 0.32%. South African growth managers (5.81% m/m) outperformed value managers (3.64% m/m).

The ZAR continued to lose ground against the USD, closing 1.02% down m/m, in yet another rollercoaster month. Furthermore, the ZAR lost as much as 2.64% and 0.87% against the euro and sterling but managed to finish the month stronger against the Japanese yen at 2.20%.
