MANAGER COMMENT

The US economy expanded at its slowest recent pace in Q1 2024, strengthening economists' expectations that the Federal Reserve (US Fed) would not cut interest rates before September 2024. The Eurozone rebounded from a technical recession in Q1 2024, boosted by lower energy prices, falling inflation, rising real wages and the prospect of interest rate cuts. The International Monetary Fund (IMF) published its World Economic Outlook Report in April, which forecasts growth in advanced economies, although it expects emerging markets will lag in 2024 and 2025.

The Bank of Japan (BOJ) kept its interest rate unchanged after its April core inflation figure was below market expectations. The US recorded a slowdown in non-farm payrolls between March and April, which was less than market expectations. The UK business activity index rose more than expected in April, with the S&P Global Flash UK Composite Output Index rising slightly in March. The South African Reserve Bank (SARB) is still struggling to lower inflation to the midpoint of its target range. A high inflation rate is one of the key contributors to the country's high interest rates.

Global equity markets took a step backwards in April. The MSCI World Index retraced for the first time in six months, with a -3.71% month-to-month (m/m) return in dollar terms. Emerging markets (EM) fared significantly better than their developed market (DM) peers in April, ending the month positively at 0.47% in dollars. Both global bonds and global property ended negatively at -2.52% m/m and -5.93% respectively in dollars. The S&P 500 was in negative territory at -4.08% m/m. Meta was the standout disappointment in the S&P 500, with its results accompanied by disappointing sales guidance and a pledge by CEO Mark Zuckerberg to spend aggressively on AI. The Dow Jones Index fell by -4.92%. The FTSE gained 2.47% m/m, with the Euro Stoxx 50 declining by -2.26% m/m and the Nikkei by -4.86% m/m.

South African equities carried their strong momentum from March into April, with the FTSE/JSE All Share Index ending positively at 2.95% m/m in rands. Industrials, Resources and Financials were in positive territory at 6.78% m/m, 6.4% m/m and 2.95% m/m respectively, while Property ended in negative territory at -0.59%. The bond market gained for the month, with the FTSE/JSE All Bond Index ending at 1.37% in rands. Bonds of 1-3 years were positive, ending the month at 0.41%, with bonds of 3-7 years at 0.56% m/m, bonds of 7-12 years at 1.27% m/m and bonds of above 12 years ending at 2.31% m/m. As in March, the rand ended strongly in April, gaining 0.53% m/m against the US dollar, 1.54% m/m against the euro, 1.43% m/m against the pound, 3.98% m/m against the Japanese yen and 0.0005% m/m against the Australian dollar.
