MANAGER COMMENT

During October markets were governed by a global risk-off sentiment with the US elections and fears over the second wave of COVID-19, dominating the news and dictated much of the movement in the market. Second wave fears have come to fruition as many European countries will be going back into lockdown. In South Africa daily new cases are just under the 2 000 mark and concerns start to rise. However, it is unlikely that the country will enter another level-5 type lockdown given the impact it had on the economy the first time.

President Ramaphosa unveiled his economic reconstruction and recovery plan in which he outlined the government's approach to resuscitate the economy and create jobs. Sentiment, however, was subdued following the announcement, with global ratings agency S&P stating that the plan lacked detail on the necessary reforms to aid a proper recovery. During the highly anticipated Medium Term Budget Speech (MTBS), Minister Mboweni highlighted that our economy is now expected to contract by 7.8% this year and that we can expect only a 3.3% recovery in 2021. Among other expenditure cuts, the minister announced that Treasury plans to reduce its wage bill over the next three years, including a proposed pay freeze. In more encouraging news, manufacturing PMI rose to 60.9 in October, pointing to a third consecutive month of expansion in factory activity and the fastest pace on record. Retail sales, meanwhile, increased 4.0% in August, above market expectations of 3.5% and well above the 0.6% posted in July.

Most major indices were in the red in the month of October as COVID-19 infection rates surged across Europe and the US. Prospects of new lockdowns clearly flustered markets as the MSCI World Index returned -3.07% (USD terms) and -1.42% YTD. The story is more positive on the emerging market (EM) front as the MSCI Emerging Markets Index returned 2.08% (USD terms) and 1.03% YTD. This positive performance was mainly buoyed by Asian EMs, particularly China, where the surge in COVID-19 cases has been kept under control. As more countries in Europe go back into lockdown, European stocks were amongst the worst performers, with the indices reflecting this sentiment. The EuroStoxx 50 and the DAX returned -7.3% (euro terms) and -9.44% (USD terms) respectively. The S&P 500 returned -2.66% (USD terms) and 2.76% YTD as the US presidential election approached.

During October local markets were also affected by the global risk-off sentiment, with the FTSE/JSE All Share Index (ALSI) returning -4.73% (rand terms) and -7.12% YTD. The only positive return came from Industrials, which delivered 0.37%. Meanwhile, Listed Property (SAPY index) returned -8.5%, Financials -6.08% and Resources -11.36%. SA bonds delivered 0.89% (as measured by the FTSE/JSE All Bond Index), while SA inflation-linked bonds returned 0.75% and cash (as measured by the STeFI Composite) delivered 0.34%.

Finally, the rand appreciated against the major currencies, gaining 2.65% against US dollar, 2.64% against the pound sterling and 3.34% versus the euro. For the month, South Africans invested offshore would have experienced lower market returns from their global investments in rand terms due to the strengthening of the currency, but on a year-to-date basis would have had their offshore returns bolstered by the weaker currency as the rand was down 13.94% versus the US dollar.
